And Some Would Change Our System

And Some Would Change Our System
In reviewing the record of production reported by the War Production Board up to May 25, last, the world has evidence of an industrial miracle wrought in the United States. B. M. Baruch puts the heart of the story in thirty-three words: "The war has been a crucible for all economic systems of the world, for our own, for Communism, Fascism, Nazism—all the others. And the American system has outproduced the world."

What Does Freedom Mean?

What Does Freedom Mean?

Early in 1939 an amendment to the Oregon Constitution was proposed to the effect that, "any contract of employment which denies to any individual or individuals the right to earn a living without being compelled to be a member of a labor union, hereby is declared to be against public policy and void." The proposal was dropped because of the war. With the war's end nearer, however, California this year will vote on a similar proposal, the petition already having been filed.

It seems ridiculous in a free country to have to ask legislative authority for the right to work without first joining and paying an organization. But apparently that is the only way to assure freedom of work opportunity to returning soldiers.
